

Workshop

Production and Distribution of Medical Knowledge in Rural China: Maoist and post-Maoist Experiences

11.02.2014: 9 am - 6 pm

In 20th century, China has transformed itself from a pre-modern agrarian state to one that is dominated by the worship of science and technology and to one that relentlessly pursues the establishment of a scientific society. Since the foundation of the People's Republic of China, both the field of Traditional Chinese Medicine and Traditional Chinese Veterinary Medicine have experienced successful efforts of scientification, resulting in a thorough remodeling of medical knowledge and practices. This workshop addresses the genesis and transformation of those in Maoist and post-Maoist China.

Venue:

Lehrstuhl für Sinologie, Raum 00.111,
Artilleriestr. 70, 91052 Erlangen

Convenor:

Prof. Dr. Marc A. Matten
marc.matten@fau.de; 09131/85-23094

For further information and the current workshop schedule please refer to www.sass.fau.de

This workshop is financially supported by the Chiang Ching-Kuo Foundation and Universität Bayern e.V.